ENGLISH RAILROAD EXPERT FINDS FAULT

Says American Roads Are Reckless of Safety of Passengers and Employes.

CONDEMNS AUTOMATIC DEVICES

Claims British Lines Carry More Passengers on a Far Less Mileage Than Railroads in This Country.

London, Oct. 18 .- The report of H. A. Walker, the expert sent by the London and Northwestern Railway Company to America, in order to investigate railroad conditions, has been published. Mr. Walker sums up as follows:

"It will be seen from the figures before you that American companies have nothing to boast of in the safety either of their passengers or employes. On the contrary human life seems to be considered of much less importance there than here, and I am of the opinion that in this respect the British railway officials have nothing whatever to learn from their American con-tation going on in Great Britain for the adoption of an automatic coupling used in America is not justified by statistics, the old-fashioned screw couplings showing a smaller percentage of accidents to employes. Curiously enough, the same day that this justification of the British, railroad system appears in the Times the Saturday Review prints a letter from a well-known engineer, in which the writer makes an urgent plea for the adoption of automatic couplings and quotes the interstate Commerce Commission's figures as showing that a decrease in the number of accidents had resulted therefrom. The engineer declares that millions are lost to British shareholders by the fallure of the roads in Great Britain to adopt into the roads in Great Britain to adopt in the same half for the Good Shepherd Sisters, were about $200.

STUDENT'S RAPID PROMOTION.

Foreign Positions Successfully Filled by Fred A. Stewart. REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Minneapolis, Oct. 18.—Fred A. Siewart has come home after an absence of almost two years in foreign travel. He was in his junior year at the State University when he left, and his first act upon returning was to register again as a student.

For a year before his departure young Stewart's desire burned strong for the sights of the great world. In December, 1800, he left San Francisco for Nagasaki, Japan, having no definite object in mind or any purpose beyond a desire to see Japan.

At the time there was a vacancy in the consular service there, and Mr. Stewart, having formed close acquaintance with the American representatives soon after his arrival, was advised to make application for the post. He was successful. The office of Vice Consul at Nagasaki was not a bad berth for a young man of 21 to tumble into. This office he filed for some months, until a New York life insurance company offered him the post of cashier in its office at Shanghat, China. This position he held until the turn of the following year, when he set out for Bottneo. Two months were spent in the China Sea. After a glimpse of Sumatra and Java Mr. Stowart wound up at Hong-Kong, but only to sail again for the Philippines.

Mr. Stewart's luck remained with him, and Hong-Kong, but only to sail again for the Philippines.

Mr. Stewart's luck remained with him, and one week from his arrival in Manils his ability to speak German. French and Spanish became known to the head of the Police Department of the city. As there was demand for linguists, Stewart found himself promptly installed in the office of the Chlof of the Government Secret Service. There he stayed until he reached the decision to return home and complete his education. The return trip was varied by a minor tour in Arabia and several months spent in Italy, Austria, Switzerland. France and England.

The Frank P. Blair Woman's Relief Corps, No. 2, will give a cuchre to-morrow at Frank P. Blair Hall, Seventeenth and Market streets. Arrangements for a great number of players have been made, and many handsome prizes will be awarded.

Strange Sculptures Found Believed to Be Representations of Ancient Mythological Figures.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL. Toronto, Canada, Oct. 18.-A discovery which is likely to have far-reaching influence in settling disputed biblical questions is announced to archaeologists by Mrs. Ghosn-el-Howie, late of Toronto, now of is announced to archaeologists by Mrs. Ghoan-ei-Howie, late of Toronto, now of Mount Lebanon, Byria.

While traveling on the eastern slope of Lebanon Mrs. Howie's attention was attracted by two large bowiders. The first of these, which was found high up in the mountain, has sculptured upon it the figures of a bull, a cow and a lion. This grouping of animal forms is said to point to a Hittite hand.

The other sculpture, which was some miles down the mountain in a yorge very near the edge of the rich, fertile plain of Cocele-Syria, is a representation of a female armed with a sword and a spear.

At first it was thought that this figure represented the Queen of the desert, Zenobia of Tadmor in the wilderness, but further study leads Mrs. Howie to suppose that this is no other than the Goddess Ashratu. Mistress of the Plain, wife of Amurru, Lord of the Mountains, referred to in the Tell-el-Amarus letters discovered fifteen years ago in Egypt.

The location of these sculptures, representing the god Amurru (symbolized by the buil) up among the mcuntains, and the female (down on the edge of the plain, agrees well with the published inscriptions which tell us that he is "lord of the mountains" and she "mistrass of the plain," or "wilderbess."

How many thousands of human beings have in the past and forgotten centuries bowed the knee to this Baal may only be conjectured, but this much is plain, that these two sculptures belong to the class condemned in the first verse of the tenty-sixth chapter of Levitkus, "image of stone," "stone of picture," or, as my Arable version has it, "hajaran messowersn"—that is, a stone on which like-nesses are traced.

If scientists should confirm Mrs. Howie's later views as to the leentity and age of these sculptures, then destructive criticism which ascribes to Levitkus, "image of stone," "futured stone," "stone of picture," or, as my Arable version has it, "hajaran messowersn"—that is, a stone on which like-nesses are traced.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Chamois, Mo., Oct. 18.—The annual reunion of public schools of Osage County took place here to-day. The crowd was large. The feature of the day was the parade of 500 pupils wearing uniforms representing the schools. The parade passed to Hiverside Park, where the address of welcome was made by County Representative A.
